On My Travels

Will A. Sanborn

9/10/95

On my travels
I never used to pay too much attention
To the places I'd pass through
Just watching the scenery drift silently by the windows

Then one day I realized
That for every house, in every town
People lived there
People just like me

Living out their lives
Just as important, apart from mine

Copyright 1995, Will A. Sanborn - was1@shore.net